ALASKA HIGHWAY A MARVEL

The speed and ability with which construction of the Alaska highway has been carried forward is "astounding," Hon. W.A. Fallow, provincial minister of public works declared following an inspection trip over 500 miles of the highway.

"In my opinion," he said, "the Alaska highway is one of the marvels of the age. It is comparable to the Panama Canal in the magnitude of the project."

Mr. Fallow travelled on the highway from Dawson Creek to Fort Nelson by automobile.

MITCHELL F. HEPBURN RESIGNS

Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn, whose colorful political career and caustic comment often brought him about of the federal government, resigned last Thursday as head of the Liberal government of Ontario.

The 48-year-old party leader, in office for two terms since June 1934, was succeeded by Attorney-General Gordon Conant.

Mr. Hepburn announced that he would retain the cabinet portfolio of Provincial Treasurer for the present.

RAILWAY EXTENSION URGED

Extension of the Northern Alberta Railway as a rail route to Alaska was urged in a statement issued recently by Premier Abernethy on behalf of the Alberta government.

The statement pointed out that the route would be much shorter and more direct than any other between Washington, D.C. or New York and Alaska. It stated that such an extension would be less expensive to build and easier to operate, because a large part of it would run through comparatively unpopulated areas. Advantages of protection from attack were also cited by the Premier's statement.

RATIONING OF BUS TRAVEL

OTTAWA—Indirect rationing of bus travel through restrictions prohibiting the carrying of a bus passenger more than 5 miles in one continuous journey was announced this week by the supply department.

The order, effective November 15th, does not apply where no other "reasonably direct form of public transportation is available."

Under instructions from Transit Controller G.S. Gray, regional transit offices have mailed notices to public vehicle operators. The instructions will prevent the carrying of a passenger on a 50-mile round trip, but will prohibit the sale of a ticket for any continuous journey of more than 50 miles, except on routes approved by the controller.

HARVEST HELP OBTAINED FROM PEACE RIVER AREA

It was disclosed this week that approximately 75 harvesters have been brought from the Peace River district to work in the harvest fields south of Edmonton. These harvesters were brought out under the Dominion-Provincial farm labor agreement, and nearly all the men have already harvested from 20 to 30 days in the Peace River country before coming south.

CARBON UNIT HAS LONG WAY TO GO TO RAISE LOAN QUOTA

Canvas of District is Delayed Due to Weather

Canada's Third Victory Loan has reached about 50 per cent of its objective of $750,000,000, but the local unit has still quite a way to go to raise its quota of $25,000. While the weather has been unfavorable and canvassing is far from complete, the Carbon Unit reported total subscriptions of $10,000 to Tuesday evening of this week.

A thorough canvas of the town and districts is planned before the loan is completed, and it is expected that the quota of the Carbon Unit will be reached and surpassed before the closing of this week.

In the meantime you are asked to make your application for bonds immediately and not wait for the canvasser to call.

WHEAT POOLS URGE ADVANCE 40¢ BUSHEL ON NEW CROP WHEAT

Should Not Expect the Farmer to Store Grain

The executives of three Wheat Pools in a brief submitted to the federal wheat committee recently suggested that the federal government should make advances against stocks of wheat in western farms which can be delivered only in limited quantities owing to congestion in country and terminal elevators.

The brief also urged the continuation of the payment of farm storage inaugurated last year.

"The Dominion is paying 90¢ a bushel on 500,000,000 bushels of wheat, basis One Northern in store at Ft. William, but this year's crop is grading less than One Northern and the return to the farmer will not likely run higher than 45¢ a bushel on the average. The Wheat Pool delegation suggested an advance of 40¢ a bushel on a return of about 45¢ a bushel to producers at the country elevator. The advance would affect only the 250,000,000 bushels of the Wheat Board is obligated to accept.

Pool spokesmen stated that prairie farmers have provide temporary storage for the farm for more than 500,000,000 bushels, and permanent storage to carry over into next crop year more than 200,000,000 bushels. The storage situation is further complicated by a large acreage of barley and other coarse grains for which farm storage has to be provided.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Flava and Mary were Drumheller visitors last Friday.

"MISS CANADA GIRLS" SELL $142 IN STAMPS

The "Miss Canada Girls" who have been selling War Savings Stamps in town for the past several Saturdays have done remarkably well and to date have sold over $142 in stamps. One Saturday night the girls sold $30 worth of stamps, and another Saturday night they sold $32 worth.

Twelve girls in all, taking turns in pairs, have been on the job, as follows:

Misses Jean Heath, Betty Woods, Phyllis Hunt, Joyce Chapman, Olga Kapanick, "Bunchy" Reid, Edith Goble, Edith Hay, Betty Gablehouse, Olga, Klapnicka, Helen Madjen and Irene Goudie.

BANK OF MONTREAL HAS BEEN OPERATING HERE FOR 25 YEARS

Bank Celebrates 125th Anniversary Nov. 3

Canada's oldest banking institution, the Bank of Montreal, will next Tuesday observe the completion of 125 years of operation in the city of Canada. Founded in 1817, half a century before Confederation, the bank is today a nationwide institution with branches from coast to coast.

In Carbon, the bank's office has been in operation since 1918. By reason of the services it has rendered to the people and business interests of the community, the bank has aided materially in the growth of the town and the development of its trade and industry.

When the local office was first established here it took over the private banking firm of J.W. Bain. The company which had operated successfully for a number of years. At that time the town had a population of about 200, and it was not until four years later, that, with the completion of the C.P.R. line from Calgary to Kneehill, Carbon obtained railway facilities. The coming of the railway was very beneficial, securing as it did an outlet for local coal.

Since 1918 the local office has had a succession of capable managers. Those, not only because of the manner in which they have administered the affairs of the local bank, but also because of the prominent part they have taken in the life of the community as a whole.

The present manager, D.E. Mackay, was appointed manager of the Carbon branch in March of this year.

CARBON, ALBERTA, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1942

U.S. SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE SPEAKS TO CANADIAN FARMERS. The CBC Farm broadcast department had U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard speak to Canadian farmers on National Farm Radio Forum recently. The programme was heard over CBC and marked the first time American agriculture, through one of its officials, has directed specific attention to Canadian farm problems.

FIRST SNOW OF SEASON

Snow began falling in Carbon on Friday evening and the ground was covered with the wintry mantle on Saturday morning, bringing first signs of winter. Most of the snow dissolved, but Monday night more snow appeared and continued all day Tuesday, and unless one wants to be optimistic it looks as though winter may be here.

Temperatures dropped to two degrees above zero Saturday morning and the snow has completely stopped all farm operations, with another week or ten days threatening still to be done.

LITTLE ITEMS OF LOCAL INTEREST

Miss Dorothy Graham left Monday for Calgary where she will work for Mr. Simon in a bank office.

The dance sponsored by the I.O.G.E. and held in the Scout Hall last Thursday night in aid of the Milk for Britain fund, was well patronized and over $30 was raised for this worthy cause.

The Harvest Mission Festival will be held at the Zion church on Sunday, November 1st. Services will be from 10:30 a.m. to 12:00 p.m., and from 2:00 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. Rev. C. Rempel of Trochu will be guest speaker at both services. Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

Rev. E.S. Penzance of Carbon will be guest speaker at the Trochu Harvest Mission Festival on Sunday, November 1st.

Albert, Gordon and Fred Schell, G. Edinger, Carl Schuler and Mrs. K. Schell left Monday on a big game hunt west of Turner Valley.

Gravelling of the portion of No. 9 highway which was graded up to the fall, has commenced and gravel is being hauled from Irricana, at present.

According to the last issue of the Canada Gazette, Mr. and Mrs. A. Bickel of Granger, and Mr. and Mrs. J.J. Neher of Carbon were granted naturalization papers.

The Gobel family have moved into the house recently vacated by the Mad. Gobel family.

Miss Elaine Torrance of Calgary spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S.F. Torrance.

Ralph Atkinson spent a few days in Calgary this week and has passed his examination for entry into the R.C.A.F.

John Atkinson, Dave Halstead and Alex Reid were among those from Carbon attending the stock sale in Calgary last week.

Louis Gobel has received his call to the Air Force and left the first of the week to report for duty.

Mr. and Mrs. C.S. Sanford and family of Barberry spent the week end in Carbon visiting with Mr. and Mrs. E.J. Roulston. They brought some fine sweet turnips down from the West and a few for sale as for $1.50 if anyone wants them by applying to Jim Flava, who says he will eat the Swedes if he can't dispose of them.

A.F. McKibbin, Councillor for District No. 2 of the Alberta Pharmaceutical Association, held district meetings and refresher courses at Red Deer on Wednesday and at Drumheller on Friday of last week, and a good attendance of druggists was present from the various towns in the immediate districts.

HON. J. L. HISLEY PRAISES FARMERS FOR WAR EFFORT

Said Mr. Hisley, in a speech made at Toronto recently:

"We must look to the farmers of Canada for substantial help in our Victory Loans. I wonder if most of us realize how much the hard-working farmers of this country and their families have been doing in this war. First they have supplied men—the able-bodied men—for the armed forces and for war industry. I am told that from a pre-war, able-bodied farm manpower supply of about one and a quarter million, no less than a quarter of a million have gone into the services or the factories. I am sure they have worked harder and longer, with the help of older men, women and children, and have accomplished wonders in production. They have more than doubled our hog production, increased beef production by 20 per cent, and cheese production by 60 per cent. They have learned to grow relatively new crops like flax and soy beans to meet special shortages created by the war. They have grown far more wheat than before to make possible the greater livestock production so urgently needed by Britain. They have increased their milk and mowing in the acreage devoted to wheat, they have, by the aid of good government subsidies, increased their crop in our history—and they are harvesting it in the face of an acute labour shortage. Canadian farmers are now able to supply Britain with all the wheat she needs, and with an amount of bacon and ham nearly equal to the total she obtained from all countries before the war. Every day, in speaking of our wartime accomplishments, take a natural pride in the speed with which they have built up an army, a navy and a huge air force, and in the magnitude and excellence of our production of materials and war equipment. These are more spectacular—more warlike—but they are no more surprising than the 'old-fashioned' achievements of Canadian agriculture.

The high level of farm production, at fair and reasonable prices, is providing this year a gross farm income which although it is too early to estimate with accuracy, will certainly rank well with that of the best years of the past. Like other business men, however, the farmers are unable to spend what they normally would from such income on farm machinery or buildings, because of the shortages of materials. Like other consumers, they are unable to buy all they would like to buy these days for themselves. Consequently, the farmers have funds available for investment in Victory Bonds. We have some new arrangements for working out—notably the Victory ticket plan—which make it much simpler and more convenient for the farmers to take the purchase of Victory Bonds into his business. In supporting this plan, the farmers of Canada will be able to serve a double capacity—as producers of vitally needed foodstuffs, and as a plan to save finance. In addition, of course, they will be improving their own position, building up reserves for the days when machinery can be replaced or extended and when we all can enjoy the better life to which we look forward."

CRADDOCK—McCRACKEN

A quiet wedding was solemnized at the United Church Manor on Saturday, October 24th at 3 p.m. when Marjorie McCracken became the bride of John Craddock, both of Carbon, Mr. R. H. Hinchey officiated.

Mrs. A. Hay, aunt of the bride, put on a wedding supper for immediate relatives following the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Craddock will reside on the farm north-east of town.

Mrs. Harnes's C.O.L.T. group held a hallowe'en party on Tuesday evening.

Cellulose From Wood Is Now Being Converted By Chemistry Into Many Essential War Uses

A TREE was probably man's first shelter, a broken branch one of his first weapons. Wood was the raw material for much of his early floundering efforts at making things to do the job of man-made things since man lived by swinging his wooden club he has learned how to take countless other elements of his environment and turn them into clothing, buildings, vehicles. Centring on just one of these elements, we have labelled the present the "age of steel," but it is still the age of wood—in more ways than casual thought might suggest, says Dr. I. R. McFattie, Research Manager of Canadian Industries Limited.

Not only is the tree an obvious factor in dwelling construction, but even in our weapons of war may be found the essence of our early ancestor's primitive wooden club. Cellulose, the universal building material of the plant kingdom, taken from the forest or the cotton plantation, is the chief ingredient of smokeless powder. And smokeless powder is one of the important propellants that hurst bullets and shells in modern warfare.

In normal times smokeless powder is made from cotton linters, the short fuzz remaining on the inside of the cotton after the longer, spinnable fibres are removed in the gin. But today's war demands are so great that the light wood pulp must help out. Wood cellulose has been used in Canada for a good many years in the manufacture of "Cellulophane" and rayon but it is only since the beginning of the war that research and development has been undertaken to adapt wood pulp to the manufacture of nitrocellulose, the base for certain types of high explosives required for military purposes.

The use of cellulose-bearing wood pulps, quite plentiful in Canada, has not only eliminated the importation of cotton linters from the United States, thus effecting a considerable saving in foreign exchange, but has also considerably reduced the cost of material costs without in any way impairing the quality or effectiveness of the resultant product. One Canadian wartime explosives plant has been operating on wood pulp for over a year, while two others have been using this domestic type of cellulose exclusively now for six months and two months respectively. Canada, therefore, is one of the first of the United Nations to adopt large scale production of military explosives from her own domestic supplies of chemical wood pulps.

Many other things now in the swift stream of war goods are made of cellulose from wood or cotton. A large number of these follow the same strength type of which goes into tough, rubber-saving tire cord fabric for bombers, tanks and combat cars. Also for flare and equipment parachutes, uniform linings and other items. Camera film, for stills and motion pictures made of cellulose nitrate or cellulose acetate and used in military reconnaissance and troop training. Cellulose is used in the X-ray film, for examining war wounds and finding hidden flaws in steel castings for guns and other material. Important documents, blueprints, etc., also are made of cellulose acetate. "Cellulophane" provides the waterproof proof properties of many new non-metal food packages, thus retaining tons of tin and steel for the war effort. "Cellulophane" has been used by Navy surgeons as a waterproof wound dressing. And incorporated with other substances it makes a new wrapping material to protect guns, airplane parts, etc. from rust and dirt during assembly or shipment to combat zones. Cellulose lacquers to protect ammunition, planes, tanks, against sea-water, sun and weather.

Outside of the strictly chemical use of cellulose is paper, which in ordinary times consumes 90 per cent. of the output of wood pulp. Paper is in the war, of course, in the countless letters, orders and printed regulations, as well as in newspaper boxes to ship food, ammunition and equipment. When all these articles and many more in the purely civilian field are considered, it is seen that the forest and the cotton plantation supply in cellulose, one of the most important raw materials of modern industry. It has been calculated, in fact, that on the basis of volume of product, though not by weight, more cellulose is used than steel.

While thus providing man with an abundant and remarkably adaptable raw material, nature still keeps to herself the secret of its "manufacture." Chemists have found that it is compounded by the leaves of the plant in a process known as photosynthesis, in which the green colouring matter, chlorophyll, harnesses the energy of sunlight to convert carbon dioxide, oxygen and hydrogen—the elements of air and water—into

Jewish Children

Canada Agrees To Take 1,000 Refugees Now In France
Canada has agreed to take 1,000 Jewish refugee children now in France, on the condition that homes and maintenance for them can be found in Jewish homes here, it was learned.

Negotiations have been going on for some time looking toward the care of many young Jewish children in unoccupied France, and it is understood the United States is agreeing to take 5,000 under similar conditions.

Under Canadian immigration laws the age limit for "children" is 18. The maximum number to be taken in 1,000 but will be less if homes are not found for that total.

The arrangement is that this agreement only provides sanctuary, so far as the government is concerned, for the duration of the war.

While there is agreement on this conditional transfer there is no certainty as to when the children might arrive, since wartime ocean transportation difficulties have to be overcome.

Plane Production

U.S. Pressing Towards 5,000 A Month Mark

The United States Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce reported that the aircraft industry "has been pressing toward the 5,000 monthly production rate asked for by President Roosevelt after passing a rate of 4,000 a month in May."

Between Dec. 7 and Oct. 1, the period U.S. has been at war, the chamber said a greater number of aircraft had been turned out than were produced during the entire 15-year period prior to the Japanese attack.

More than $4,000,000,000 worth of planes, engines and propellers will be produced during 1942, the organization forecast, and said there was "a huge increase in the number of heavy, long-range aircraft."

The organization said also that "there are more than a score of new types of warplanes now undergoing tests and check-ups."

To Conserve Power

Eastern Paper Mills Plan To Curtail Operations

Thirty-six pulp and paper mills in Ontario and Quebec are now joined in an electrical power conservation program entailing operation curtailments, it was stated at Montreal in joint conference by Power Controller H. J. Symington and Newsprint Controller R. L. Weldon.

The announcement said: "The extra power will be made available from all paper and paper board mills in the power shortage areas in localities where it can be used efficiently. The power saving plan embraces operation of fine paper and paper board mills on Sundays and shutting them down for 24-hour periods on week days so that war industries can have more power."

JUST TO LEARN ON

The New Statesman and Nation, London, tells this story: She had applied to join the Women's Land Army. On being interviewed it transpired that she was terrified of crows, but despite this was most anxious to learn to milk. "I'm sure I should be all right," she said, "if only I could start on a calf."

There are just over 100 books in existence which were printed before the sixteenth century.

Here's How Canadians Waste Power

So that our war production may not suffer, householders are asked to conserve their electricity. The Department of Munitions and Supply order applies to Ontario and Quebec where many war plants are situated and working 24 hours a day. Canadians for years have wasted power and two of the most common methods of waste are illustrated above. (1) The refrigerator door is left open while the housewife takes out the foodstuffs, one item at a time, and walks away. Power is also wasted when you keep the refrigerator colder than necessary. (2) A frequent power thief is the electric toaster operating in competition with a newspaper. Toasters should be in use only when toast is required. Don't leave your toaster on all during breakfast when not toasting. Watch your toast so it won't burn. Burned toast only means another piece has to be made and more electricity used up. Here the wastage is double—both bread and power are used unnecessarily.

Royal Air Force Using With Success The Sturdy Hurricane In Recent Dive Bombing Attacks

THE sturdy Hurricane, Britain's aerial jack of all trades, has added dive-bombing to its well laden bag of tricks. Disclosure that the Royal Air Force is using these fast single-seater aircraft as dive-bombers was made by a squadron leader in a broadcast during their first dive-bombing attack, by eight "Hurris" which went all the way down in formation and smashed their target with two tons of bombs.

Nature of the target was not revealed, but the Hurricane showed down in a 400-miles-an-hour, 70-degree dive from 8,000 feet to 1,500—well over a mile—and besides releasing the two tons of bombs brought 96 guns to bear on the target.

The Hurricane began as a fighter, mainly anti-bomber, and did great work in the battle of Britain, when it tore great gaps in the Germans' Stuka dive bomber formations. Then it "re-appeared" as a fighter-bomber and has done much to dislocate Nazi communications in occupied territories, particularly in northern France. As a night fighter, the Hurricane has chalked up a long list of successes.

Disclosure that the Hurricane accomplishment indicates another imaginative asidest in Britain's air force, though not a quantum leap. Dive-bombing has been controversial one for many months and official British circles have generally held the view that dive-bombers were too vulnerable and that losses in machines were higher than the value of the "precision" results.

The point at which the Nazi Stuka for instance particularly exposed itself to successful fighter attack is at the end of its dive, when it is vulnerable.

The Hurricane as a dive-bomber does not appear to be subject to this criticism because it is not so vulnerable. The opposing school of thought has contended that in addition to very accurate bombing the dive-bomber has a big edge on morale.

As far as is known, the R.A.F. is not equipped with dive bombers as such, though the Americans have used them, particularly in the Far East where they usually are carrier-borne machines.

The German air force has never used as many as eight dive-bombers in formation on a single target and eight Hurricanes diving in a row is certainly a new conception of the art.

How Name Originated

Soldiers Gave Title Of Uncle Sam To U.S. Government

During the War of 1812, Troy, New York, was an important clearing centre for food for the army, recalls one of the nation's oldest men. A well-known meat packer had his business. Most of the beef that filled the stomachs of the lusty American soldiers was provided by this packer, arriving in oak casks labelled naturally enough, "U.S." for "United States."

The packer was Samuel Wilson, who was affectionately known as Uncle Sam, partly to distinguish him from a younger Samuel Wilson who lived in the city. The soldiers soon began calling their food "Uncle Sam's beef," and as the initials of Wilson's nickname were the same as those of his country it was not long before Uncle Sam was used as a title for the government by the American people.

Valuable Dog
Dead Lady Has A Dog That Serves Her For Hearing

Just as blind people have "seeing-eye" dogs that serve them for sight, Mrs. Esther Masters of Santa Rosa, Cal., totally deaf, has a "hearing-eye" dog that serves her for hearing. The dog, named Mitzi, is a two-year-old, brindle and white, pure-bred Boston terrier.

When the door bell rings, Mitzi runs to Mrs. Masters and paws her hand; when there is any noise or disturbance about the house, the dog again notices its mistress.

The dog likewise attracts the attention of its mistress to everything that should come under her notice.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON
OCTOBER 25STEPS TOWARD SOLUTION OF THE ALCOHOL PROBLEM

Golden text: Let justice roll down as waters, and righteousness as a mighty stream. Amos 5:24.
Lesson: Ecclesiastes 10: 17; Amos 5:24; Romans 14:19-21; 11 Corinthians 6:17; 1 Peter 4:1-5.
Devotional reading: Isaiah 1:16-20.

Explanations and Comments
"Pat for strength, and for drunkenness," Ecclesiastes 10:17. "Woe to thee, O land, when thy king is a child, and thy princes eat in the morning," is the verse preceding our printed text. The One Volume Commentary thinks the case can hardly be an imaginary one and adds: "Ptolemy Epiphanes succeeded his father Ptolemy as king of Egypt at the age of six years (202 B.C.), and during his minority there was much strife between the Syrian and Jewish factions in Egypt, and, on the part of some in high places, licentious indulgence every day and all day, ('eat in the morning'). In contradistinction to a king's princes, the writer of Ecclesiastes cries, 'Happy art thou, O land, when thy king is the son of nobles and thy princes eat in the morning,' for strength, and not for drunkenness!"

Let Righteousness Roll Down as a Mighty Stream. Amos 5:24. The prophet Amos represents God as saying: "I desire that you fast (given over to debauchery), and I will take no delight in your solemn assemblies."

"Our solemn assemblies may still be degraded by God," W. J. Parry comments. "Wherever mere ritual and form are allowed to take the place of vital communion with God and moral obedience, our worship will be as lightly esteemed by him as was the worship of Israel long ago."

Absolve for the Sake of Others. Romans 14:19-21. So then let us pursue things that make for peace, and things whereby we may edify, improve one another. Not only must we do nothing to overthrow another, but we must certainly do all we can to build another up. Overthrow not for meat's sake the work of God. Overthrow, pull down, is the opposite of edifying, build up. Possibly some of the "strong" Christians were on the point of disrupting the church of Rome over the unimportant question of "meat," and Paul counsels them not to overthrow, for meat's sake the work of God. "The Christian brother, whose Christian personality is God's work." All things are clean; however it is evil for that man who eateth with offense to his own conscience. In the church at Rome there were those who had formerly worshipped idols, the old association of ideas still cling to them, and if they partook of meat that had been offered to idols before being sold, their conscience troubled them, fearing that in so doing they were resuming their old practice of idol worship. They were narrow, unenlightened, but their conscience must be respected. If they saw the Jewish Christians partaking of such food they would be led to do the same, and thus disobey their conscience. Therefore Paul declares that it is good not to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor to do anything whereby thy brother stumbleth.

Racing pigeons have attained speeds as great as 70 miles per hour.

REG'LAR FELLERS—The Forgotten Man

Did you ever check up on just how you spend the money your budget allows for food? If you do you'd probably be surprised at the number of people who don't. And perhaps you're not even doing it yourself, now that shortages of one sort or another are making buying so difficult. For that very reason, however, it is more than ever important for the housekeeper to budget for victory.

There are a number of different ways of keeping your food budget balanced, but right now a good rule of thumb way of getting the right foods in the right proportion is this—

- Divide foods into four classes:
1. Dairy Products—milk, cheese, and butter
 2. Fruit and vegetables—including potatoes, tomatoes, (fresh and dried), cantaloupes, fruits (fresh and dried), meat, fish and eggs
 3. Cereals and other foods. This class includes bread, oatmeal, flour and the incidentals, sugar, coffee, tea, etc.
 4. Cereals and other foods. This class includes bread, oatmeal, flour and the incidentals, sugar, coffee, tea, etc.

Then spend one quarter or 25% of the money you have decided to spend on food on the articles in each class. If you are going to spend $12.00 a week on food, see that three of those dollars go for milk, cheese and butter and another three for fruit and vegetables. The minute you spend two weeks for one class and too little for another you are feeding your family an unbalanced diet.

And remember that in class 4—Cereals and other foods—most of the money (unless you have lots to spend) should buy wholehearted bread and whole grain cereals. Rationing will help you out there. Tea, coffee, and even sugar, to some extent, are not nutritional assets.

DID YOU KNOW THAT:

On Caledon Mountain in Ontario stands a Scottish castle? It was built to remind its owner of the "bonny banks and braes" of home. Stone for the walls came from the surrounding fields. Windows and doors were made by hand. This lovely Highland stronghold is shown in an Associated Screen "Did You Know That" movie short.

"Nazi Eyes On Canada"

Orson Welles, The Man From Mars
As Sam Dorman, Newspaperman

Orson Welles, actor, radio and theatrical producer is flying to Toronto, Sunday, October 25th, to contribute his services on behalf of the Canadian Victory Loan. He stars as a Weekly Newspaper Editor in the last of the dramatic radio series "Nazi Eyes On Canada," to be broadcast over a coast-to-coast network, Sunday, October 28th at 7:30 p.m. E.D.T.

Orson Welles, he of the many talents and activities, has dabbed in fields you'd never suspect. One little known episode in the varied Welles career took place when he was a 14-year-old veteran of scholastic theatricals. He was a columnist.

There was a Chicago neighborhood daily called the "Highland Park News" which had a meager circulation. He had a byline over a column of theatre news and critiques. His journalistic career was short-lived, however, as he was fired for his caustic comment on the shows.

Next Sunday for "Nazi Eyes On Canada," he becomes a newspaperman again. He will assume the part of Sam J. Dorman, Editor of the Alameda "Dispatch", Alameda, Saskatchewan. The broadcast will show by the description of everyday Alameda community folk, how their lives would change under the tyrannical heel of Nazi conquerors.

Sam J. Dorman has served 22 years as a director of the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association. He is known by every weekly editor in Canada. Today, his five sons are in uniform—his eldest, a captain in Ordnance, was wounded in the Dieppe raid.

Listen to Orson Welles as the Saskatchewan weekly newspaper editor hand. This lovely Highland stronghold is shown in an Associated Screen "Did You Know That" movie short.

Service Counted Up

Made Quart of Milk Costly For Guest in Hotel

Senator Gerald Nye, North Dakota Republican, told the Senate that a friend, stopping at a hotel in Washington, had paid $1.05 for a quart of milk he drinks nightly before retiring.

The hotel guest was informed, Nye said, that the quart of milk would have to be delivered to his room in four glasses. The charge was 30 cents for each glass, plus 25 cents for service to the room.

"I understand," Nye told his colleagues, "that the farmer whose dairy cattle produced that quart of milk may have received five cents for it."

ENJOYED THEMSELVES

An audience in occupied Denmark was viewing a Nazi newswear. Upon the appearance of Hitler getting into a plane, a voice rang out from the darkened house, "Remember me to Hess!"

Instantly the lights went out, and the Gestapo searched for the guilty one. Failing, they ordered the show closed, told the people to get their money back at the door. Silently the audience filed out, not one stopping at the box-office for his refund.

"Why our money back?" they told the gasping Gestapo. "We enjoyed the show!"

Elocution is a good thing. But it doesn't go far enough. It merely teaches a man how to speak—not when or how long.

SMILE AWHILE

"I took the recipe for this cake out of the cookbook."

"You did perfectly right, dear. It never should have been put in."

"John, do you remember—it was in a storm like this that you declared your love for me?"

"Yes, it was a terrible night."

"Does it make any difference on which side of you I sit?" asked the sweet young thing.

"Not a bit, replied the bold young man. 'I'm ambidextrous.'"

"Say, Bill, you didn't marry that girl back home while you were on vacation, did you?"

"Almost, Joe. Two of us were willing—and the minister."

"Fred: Did you do it?"

"Jack: After he paid his bill had to."

Wiffenbush—Young man, have you the formation of character that enables a person to go on and do his duty in the face of ingratitude, criticism and heartless ridicule?"

Jones—I ought to have, sir. I cook for a fishing party two full weeks.

She: Here's a story of a man out West who whistled his wife for a horse. You wouldn't swap me for a horse, would you, darling?"

He: Of course not (pause), but I'd hate to have any one tempt me with a good motor car.

Coal Position In Britain Said To Be Critical

London.—British householders will be a little colder and draughtier this winter due to fuel economies, but nobody is likely to freeze in Britain's damp and chilly climate.

"Even if fuel is rationed or if fuel targets are observed, there will be only a 20 per cent reduction in heat comfort" compared with pre-war days," said an official of the department of economic warfare.

"For the rest of Europe, however, the prospect is bleak. The best Germany can hope for will not be more than two-thirds peacetime comfort. In other continental countries the consumption of fuel permitted will be for last year's consumption to some extent at all."

Although officials admit that Britain's coal position is critical, there is no indication that a much-mooted rationing scheme, which Labor members of parliament consider necessary, will be introduced.

Just when people are weary of about switching on electric heaters and heating coal on the living room, the fuel minister has banned central heating in flats until November. Instead, they advised people to wear coats and heavier clothing earlier than usual.

This suggestion was directed especially to women—accustomed to going to work in smart frocks and frilly dresses—by Sir Leonard Hill, eminent physician. His "prescription" for the average winter was, in a nutshell, "open your windows and wear more clothes."

Scrap Metal Is Essential For Armor Plate

Ottawa.—Scrap metal is essential for the continued production of armor plate for Canadian fighting equipment. It cannot be supplanted by the production of steel from pig iron, W. Brown, executive assistant to the steel controller, told a House of Commons committee studying wartime salvage.

The scrap is mixed with pig iron in making armor plate and there is a limit to the amount of pig iron which can be used in relation to the scrap in producing the plate.

Installation of converter equipment in a Canadian steel plant would increase the production of material from pig iron which would reduce the place of scrap to a limited degree, but the demand for scrap in large quantities would continue.

M. J. Caldwell, C.C.F. leader, asked as to the possibility of developing Vancouver Island iron ore deposits in association with coal fields close at hand.

Mr. Brown said a shortage of labor here is reported for the production of blast area, and the opening of a steel plant there would probably also involve the opening of a new coal mine to supply it with fuel.

The blast furnaces would have to be obtained from the United States which already was having difficulty securing similar equipment of this nature.

R. W. Mayhew, member of parliament for Victoria, B.C., said that if steel furnaces were placed where the ore was available, "the whole waste would be better than at present."

Ingots produced in British Columbia furnaces might be sent to the United States west coast in exchange for a similar number of ingots delivered from the United States to Canada in the east.

"We have been in the bonanza period of scrap collection, and it is to be expected that supplies will be more difficult to obtain," said Roy Graham, Liberal M.P. for Swift Current.

L. Levin, administrator of steel scrap, and Mr. Brown agreed that when converted equipment went into operation some months from now, there would be production which would lessen the demand on scrap but only to a limited extent.

Mr. Levin said it was accepted that the heavy demand for scrap would continue, and when the readily accessible supplies had been consumed it would be necessary to turn to wrecked ships, to the exploration of old city dumps and to other extensive sources.

In the meantime, steel salvage authorities were seeking heavier types of salvage to keep furnaces going. It might be necessary during the winter to take ornamental fences and similar sources of scrap.

PLENTY OF NERVE

British Airman Steel Nail Bomber And Make Escape

Cairo.—Two British airmen, shot down in the Egyptian desert and faced with a long trek back to their own lines, solved the problem by stealing two enemy bombers from a German airfield and flying them back.

They had already set out from the wreck of their crashed plane and had walked 10 miles toward the east when they saw a German bomber coming down to land not far away.

Climbing to the top of a rocky hillock, they saw the air field. There were no buildings; only a few tents and lorries and these seemed poorly guarded. There were only a handful of men around.

They waited until nightfall when, they felt sure, their British flying kit wouldn't be recognized in the darkness. One of the airmen spoke German almost as fluently as English.

They stroled onto the flying field but the bombers were surrounded by a swarm of ground crew and sentries. It was too late to turn back. In his best Prussian one Briton blustered: "Why weren't these ready long ago? This one should be ready now."

He was hastily assured that the planes were ready. "Right, then we're off with them to base," the airman said. A show of hesitation was quelled with a flow of invective and threats. Engines were started up, wheel blocks removed and the two Britons were away.

GUEST CHILDREN

Only a Small Percentage of Children From Britain Have Reached Military Age

Ottawa.—Only a small percentage of the British guest children brought to Canada under the joint government scheme have reached or are approaching the age when they will become liable for military service, Mrs. D. S. Archdale, representative of the children's overseas reception board in Canada, said here.

Of some 6,000 children brought to Canada from Britain, 1,532 came out under the government-sponsored scheme. Some of these children have already returned to their homes in the United Kingdom, including four boys who had reached military age.

(A report from Edmonton said that of the 111 British guest children living in Alberta, about seven are approaching the age when they will become liable for military service.)

Girls brought to Canada by the government will be allowed to return to the United Kingdom or if they desire, to take war work in Canada when they reach the age of 18, said C. F. Blair, director of immigration.

Girls who have come out temporarily to private work in Canada are free to return home whenever they obtain their parents' consent, he added.

Two Priests And Two Sisters Killed By Japanese

London.—Four Marian missionaries, two priests and two sisters, were slain by Japanese soldiers on Guadalcanal island in the Solomons, the British colonial office said.

The announcement, which said all four were bayoneted in the throat, identified the victims as Father Albert Dubois, 34, of Boston, Mass.; Father Henry Engberink, 33, of Utrecht, Netherlands; and Sisters Sylvia and Odessa, believed to be from France. Another missionary, Sister Edmée, escaped.

Britain Is Ready For Incendiary Bombs From German Planes

London.—Hitler's boast that the German air force will take reprisals for the empire's devastating raids on the Reich went not the nation nagging if incendiary bombs are showered over Britain. Every house and building has been equipped with a fire-watching squad.

Fire-watching nowadays is compulsory for men and women with heavy fines for those failing to man their posts, said or no raid. This resulted from lessons learned during the last heavy attacks when as much damage was caused by fire as high explosives.

Male civilians between 18 and 65 who aren't otherwise employed in civil defence or exempted for other reasons were first compelled to take their turn in a rotation system at home or at place of business. Then when call-ups depleted the ranks the order was extended to include women 22 to 44.

This measure started a controversy which raged for weeks before it died a natural death. Herbert Morrison, minister of home security, steadfastly refused to change his decision to conscript women.

Strangely enough, it wasn't women who caused the rumpus. Complaints came from men who thought women didn't possess the nerve or physical stamina to fight fire bombs.

MAZE TO FIGHT FIRE

Staff Was Dismissed

London.—The Daily Express published a Stockholm despatch saying it was understood in the Swedish capital that Col. Gen. Franz Halder, chief of the German general staff, was dismissed four weeks ago.

The story said his dismissal followed high command orders that all big-scale offensives should be stopped in October to enable the German army to consolidate positions and prepare its winter quarters. This, the message said, was opposed by the Nazi party.

Reading of market news has been a heart-breaker to Canadian hog producers as American producers are getting up to $15.70 per hundred weight. Livestock for big fat corn pigs which is more than Canadian farmers get for their best bacon dressed weight, said Mr. Brown.

Superiority Over Nazi Air Force Is Very Essential

Washington.—Capt. E. V. (Eddie) Rickenbacker brought back from an official survey trip to Britain the conclusion that a second land thrust in Europe must await decisive success for the British-American air offensive.

Already aerial superiority is "definitely on the Allied side" and "the trend is entirely in our favor," the First Great War air ace reported to War Secretary Henry Stimson. But he added:

"The European theatre will remain an air theatre until we have secured superiority over the German air force and paralyze the production capacity of the German aircraft industry."

In general, Rickenbacker said that "the picture, from our standpoint, is as bright as the grim portents of war can be," although he warned against complacency. American planes and planes have produced some and are now the approval of British authorities.

"We must keep our aircraft plants going at full capacity and send steady stream of bombers, fighters, air crews and ground crews, and all this goes with it, flowing to England, so that in time there will be a constant cloud of Allied combat craft over the skies of Germany," Rickenbacker advised.

The total German air force, he said, "does not exceed 4,700 operational combat planes" of every type, a very small percentage of these being bombers.

"It would be a mistake, however, to draw the conclusion that German air power is on the decrease," he continued.

"While we may hope that British and American bombers have crippled German aircraft production and maintenance in Germany and France, the case may well be that the Germans are working feverishly on new design plants to offset the aerial superiority which, at the present writing, is definitely on the Allied side."

A ROYAL INVESTIGATOR

Described By One Who Saw This Colorful Ceremony Recently
I have just seen King George VI bestowing medals on scores of Britain's heroes—and to go up when I wanted to get up and pin a medal on King George.

For an hour and seventeen minutes he stood there at a Royal Investiture, smiling, speaking an intimate word or two to each person who bowed or curtseyed before him, always giving a firm handshake, sometimes a pat on the arm.

As each recipient stepped back, the King was already reaching for the next medal, held on a red plush pillow at his left side by an Army officer. It was like a production line in a task plant. Everybody was in his right place, everybody was coaxed to do the right thing.

It was a surprising, beautiful setting. I had no idea those grim walls of Buckingham Palace could house such fresh cleanliness of white marble pillars, immaculate red carpet, shining gold rail on panel and filigree and gold murals.

The show was taken in stride. He ran it. He did what he liked. Seemed to have a good time. His heart obviously was in his work. At the end of the first hour. I was getting fidgety, a little tired and needed a cigarette badly. Perhaps it was those sleek, shining uniforms, manly planes overhead that had roused me in the small hours, bringing back that old nervous, sleepless childhood haven't felt since the blitz days. But the King, fresh and at ease, didn't seem to have been affected by the show the Luftwaffe was on for.

When a full hour had passed the line of honorees still extended down the long white and gold corridor and around the corner out of sight. There were generals, privates, captains, high naval officers and seamen, merchant navy skippers and crewmen, nurses, civil servants in frock coats, a brown-kilted young Scot of the Black Watch, airman in dress and lesser rank, air raid wardens, women in various auxiliary services. All were in their Sunday best, medals and shining. It was their big day.

Mingled strangely in the regal setting and the long line of those decorated and those who looked on there was a sense that here was the sheer essence of democracy. There was the colonel's wife, Mrs. Molly O'Grady. Among those smiling and some half-tearful faces there was the squarer or limboed face of the White East, the bureaucracy of Whitehall, the provincialism of the English counties, the sweat and toil of the waterfront, the brownness of Wales, the virility of Scotland; there was the stanchness of Scotland, the earthenness of men who work in the fields.

It was all blended, one sensed, in a brotherhood of dependency on one another. At the bottom was the inescapable feeling that these people were fighting for something worth saving, worth dying for.

When it was over the King, still apparently fresh, smiling and at ease while we all rose again for "God Save the King". Then the doors behind him swung open and he stepped back into a great army room through which you could see a vista of a fine green grounds beyond.

He strode swiftly out of sight. Probably had lots more King work to do this day.—Wide World Correspondent.

Wild Rose Hips

Have Been Admitted With Honors To Vitamin C Society

A new member has been admitted to the vitamin C society. Citrus fruits have always been famous for tomatoes, potatoes, cabbage and cauliflower and other assorted fruits and vegetables. But now, amazingly enough the wild rose has been admitted with full honors. It seems that rose hips, the small red fruits remaining in the fall and winter after the rose petals have dropped, are a most valuable source of vitamin C. In England, where oranges are almost a thing of the past, hundreds of tons of rose hips have been made into syrup. They were made from all over the country through the cooperation of Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, school children and others. It has been found that the best time to pick them is in the early autumn after the first frost. Later in the winter they lose part of their vitamin C content.

Britain has standardized the preparation of a syrup which averages vitamin C content as high as 100 times that of orange juice. Canadians interested in preparing a rose hip syrup themselves can write to their provincial department of health for instructions.

Canada Year Book

1942 Edition Contains Much Interesting Information

The 1942 edition of the Canada Year Book, published by authorization of the Hon. James A. MacKinnon, Minister of Trade and Commerce, is announced by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The Canada Year Book is the official statistical annual of the country and contains a thoroughly up-to-date account of the natural resources of the Dominion and their development, the history of the country, its institutions, its demography, the different branches of production, trade, transportation, finance, education, etc.—in brief, a comprehensive study within the limits of a single volume of the social and economic condition of the Dominion. This new edition has been thoroughly revised throughout, and includes in all its chapters the latest information available up to the date of publication.

The 1942 Canada Year Book extends to over 1,000 pages, dealing with all phases of the national life and more especially with those susceptible of statistical measurement. A statistical summary of the progress this country has made in the last first census of the Dominion was taken in 1931.

Persons requiring the King Book may obtain it from the King Printer, Ottawa, as long as the supply lasts, at the price of $1.50 per copy. This covers mailing, cost paper, printing and binding. By a special concession, a limited number of paper-bound copies have been set aside for ministers of religion, home life students and school teachers, who may obtain such copies at the nominal price of five cents each but applicable only for these special copies should be directed to the Dominion Statistician, Dominion Bureau of Statistics, Ottawa.

Used In War Theatre

Two Tons Of Theatrical Armor Scrapped In New York

The scraps of kings and actors crumpled and ground on the city's scrap heap, their shining armor junked to make modern implements of warfare.

Two tons of metal theatrical costumes used in spectacles on the New York stage for two decades clanked against kitchen pans, bathtub and steel girders to give the growing and twisting pile a colorful medieval touch. Only a by-product of the tremendous scrap drive, directed by newspapers throughout the country, this steel-helmeted, suits of armor, chain mail and other theatrical armor, which had been used in the theatre for a century, was contributed by the Brooks Costume Company.

It was all part and parcel of a temporarily-adjusted theatrical era, beginning in the late twenties and growing in the thirties, when show productions known to the theatrical trade as "hardware circuses" were in vogue. Chain mail worn by the late J. H. Harwood and his brother, Lionel, in "The Jew" were included in the scrap. A suit of armor from "Richard III," produced seven years ago, will be melted to make bullets.

Glass was invented by the Phoenicians who are said to have used sand from the river Belus in its manufacture.

Must Work Harder

Nearly One Million Canadians Engaged In War Work

Through the Industrial Accident Prevention Association, the Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Munitions and Supply, sends a message to industry in Canada.

Mr. Howe says, "close to one million Canadians are now engaged in turning out items directly for or connected with the war. My department asks, expects and receives co-operation from Canadian industry, but we must ask for more and receive more as the war goes on."

"The Army, particularly the overseas forces, great emphasis has been placed on youth, but the finest army in the world would be of little service without fighting equipment, so that here at home, we have to turn to those whom we too young to enter the Army and to the men who are beyond Army age as well as drawing on the women of Canada, from which source we have taken almost 100,000 women who are doing a magnificent job for industry and for our cause."

"I ask that the men and women now in industry and those who go into industry, give themselves even more wholeheartedly to the task that they stay on the job, they keep themselves physically fit and free from accidents, so that there may be no let-up."

"Saving time, doing more each day, saving materials, keeping fit, all these are the things that will help us to win this titanic struggle. I ask again for, again expect and again hope to receive your fullest co-operation."

Show Big Increase

Consolidates 977,000,000 Fresh Water Ducks In West

According to this year's census, of wild ducks, taken by the conservative organization known as Ducks Unlimited, there are about 977,000,000 fresh water ducks in the Prairie Provinces and the territories north of them. This is an increase of 25 per cent in the duck population in a single year.

Many factors are said to have contributed to this gratifying comeback by the ducks. Rain fall has been plentiful, and natural sloughs have been supplemented by artificial ponds and lakes created to hold moisture, especially in the drought areas.

As a result, the water fowl have had at their disposal an unusually large amount of feeding and breeding grounds.—Edmonton Journal.

Use Of Perfume

Dress May Be Ruined If Perfume Applied Direct To Material

There are plenty of ways to apply perfume, but don't take a chance on putting it on your costume.

According to officials of the Laundry and Dry Cleaning Laboratory, National Research Council, Ottawa, many dresses sent to them for cleaning and repairs are ruined from the use of perfume.

In many materials, it is explained, the perfume is absorbed by the alcohol in the perfume. The spots may not show at once, but suddenly become apparent after dry cleaning and pressing, the heat and solvent having an effect on the already sensitized dye which they would not have on the original dyed fabric.

Shows Tank Landing Exercises

Here are troops in Britain landing from a tank-carrying craft during recent exercises in landing operations on the continent. It was part of combined exercises which saw bulldozers, heavy Churchill tanks, A.A. guns, ammunition and Bren gun carriers put ashore. All equipment was released at top speed, as part of the rehearsal.

Straight Tracks

Over Fifty-Seven Miles Without A Curve

There are many straight stretches of railway track in the more than 33,000 miles of lines operated by the Canadian National Railways, the longest being on a branch line in Western Canada. This tangent commences near Camrose and ends at Alliance, Alta., a distance of 55.6 miles.

In second place, totalling 57.45 miles, is a piece of Central Region main line track between Kamoka and Chatham, Ont. Next is a portion of main line track in the Western Region which measures 44.9 miles, being on the route of the Continental Limited from Cuttara to West of Melville, Sask. East of Kent Junction to west of Catamount, N.B., 10.29 miles, is the longest Canadian National tangent in the Atlantic Region.

On a line running from Durand to Grand Rapids, Mich., there is a straight piece of track of 29.03 miles, which is the longest tangent on lines operated by the Canadian National Railways in the United States.—Canadian National Railways Bulletin.

Spotted Fever

Three Districts In Southern Alberta As Possible Sources

Three districts in southern Alberta are possible sources of Rocky Mountain spotted fever, J. H. Brown of the department of entomology at the University of Alberta reports.

The areas in which infected ticks have been found are the districts south of Lethbridge, south of Medicine Hat and the Manyberries area. The fever is contracted from the ticks carried by wild animals. Residents in the district mentioned have been offered vaccine as a safeguard against the disease. The treatment is provided by the provincial department of health free of charge.

Canadian Airmen Dress Lightly In Middle East

Judging from those Canadian and American pilots' dress, it's pretty warm even for flying in the Middle East. Members of the Royal Canadian Air Force, pictured here in one of their aircraft, are serving with a Sharktooth Squadron of Kittyhawk fighters. Standing on the wing are: Sgt. R. Deburko, Newton, Mass., at the left; Sgt. L. Barlow, Bowth, South Dakota; Pilot Officer L. H. Murphy, Ottawa, Ontario, and Flight Sergeant R. C. Smith, Detroit. The bottom row are: Pilot Officer J. G. Wright, Ottawa; Sgt. A. Shaw, University of Toronto; Sgt. J. M. S. Crichton, Chapleau, Ontario; Pilot Officer H. L. Phillips, San Antonio, Tex.; and Pilot Officer G. W. Wiley of Windsor, Ont.

Conserve Supplies

Elimination Of Frills Is Proceeding At Rapid Pace

Nearly 200 orders covering the conservation of supplies and the simplification of business activities have been approved by the Industrial Division of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board since February this year, a survey showed recently.

Elimination of "frills" is proceeding at a accelerated pace. The board examining the entire industrial picture to see how manpower may be released and supplies conserved by the reduction or elimination of non-essential activities.

Indications were that such industry and its requirements would be considered separately without a blanket order. The board works in close association with the national service branch, and employment requirements in specific areas may have a bearing on the number of workers available to non-essential industries in that area.

Ten orders dealing with foods have been issued in the present year. One in line with the simplification program, limited the varieties of bread and bakery products which might be made, restricted deliveries, prohibited premiums and required labelling for weight and identification when baked.

The manufacture of new clothes for four and cereal products made of barley, jute cotton, kraft paper or other substitutes for wool and cotton 49 and 99-cent sizes was forbidden.

Ten orders cover simplification, standardization and conservation of electrical equipment and supplies, and five deal with farm, road and municipal machinery. Heating, plumbing, gas and conditioning equipment are governed by 10 orders.

To control manufacture of furniture and its requirements would be ranging from restrictions on manufacture to standardization and simplification of desks, typewriters, and other office equipment.

Golf clubs, golf and tennis balls, tennis rackets, tennis shoes, leather sports goods, skis and ski poles, toboggans and hockey sticks are all touched by the regulations for winter sports. Winter sports gear is dealt with in six orders and converted paper in seven.

In the "services" category retail deliveries are limited to one day over any route and zoning is established to insure delivery of non-essentials in some areas.

The wartime demand on metals is reflected in 24 orders covering fabricated steel products and non-ferrous metals, establishing limitations and simplifications.

Fine clothing made of wool is controlled by 13 orders, knitted goods by eight, men's and boys' furnishings by three and women's dresses and children's wear by seven.

Enormous Wheat Crop

Great Wars And Record Breaking Yields Have Made America

Great wars and record-breaking yields of wheat in Canada and the United States would seem to have an affinity, says the Monthly Review of the Wheat Situation. It was during the first world war that the United States suggested the agricultural world with the production of an enormous wheat crop. The year was 1915, and the United States harvested one billion bushels of wheat—a record which still stands—while Canada's Prairie Provinces yielded even the most experienced agriculturists with yields per acre beyond anything on record.

History has repeated itself in the second world war. The yield of wheat per acre in both Canada and the United States in 1942 has shattered the 1915 record which stood for 27 years, while Canada has reached new heights in production. The two countries between them have a wheat crop totalling 1,597,000,000 bushels, of which the United States produced 982 million and Canada 615 million bushels. The previous best for Canada was the crop of 566.7 million bushels produced on a larger acreage in 1928, while in the United States the new crop is only about 18 million bushels below the record-breaking crop of 1915.

CHAPTER II

That kiss had a shattering effect upon Anne, playing havoc with her emotional balance. It had been fantastic, yet paradoxically somewhat understandable. It was as if something that happened: Steve Hayes had held her robe while she slipped into it. He had been very close, his fingers had touched hers, they had looked into one another's eyes—and they had kissed. That was Anne's first reaction.

But the next moment, when Steve Hayes' arms dropped away, she wondered what was wrong with her. She had known handsome men before without wanting them to kiss her and if the space of time she had known this man, this stranger, was added up it would total mere minutes. Anne realized then that she had acted foolishly; her sort didn't kiss so easily, nor want men to think so. Suddenly she wasn't cold any more, and a wave of heat burned in her cheeks. She dropped her eyes and her fingers were all clumsy thumbs as she tied the end of her robe.

Anne said, "It will get cold quickly here. I think a hot cup of coffee would do good. Will you come up to the lodge and have one?"

"Thanks. I'd like that," he replied. "But don't think I mean to take further advantage of you."

"In that case, I'll take a rain check on that cup of coffee," Anne said.

She looked at him then, smiled faintly, and he gave her a jaunty little salute with a suggestion of intimacy in it. They parted like that. Anne moving off through the trees behind her, Steve Hayes hesitating softly for his horse. She did not look back, but walked along, swinging her rubber cap from his strap and acting as though everything was the same and nothing changed. There was no feeling, her friend, however. Something had changed, some complex thing. The heart of Anne Lowry seemed to be singing.

Mrs. Bailey, one of the staff, was in the lobby when Anne entered. Mrs. Bailey was a widow, a house-efficient woman with experience in managing mountain hotels, and her acquaintance had been a stroke of luck for Anne Lowry. She looked mildly troubled now.

"Those groceries didn't come, Miss Lowry," she said, "and the guests tomorrow, well, certainly have to have proper food. I mean, I was going to suggest that you send Burke into town for it but he hurt his ankle carrying in wood for the fireplace, Oub, not a serious injury, but one that must be mended."

"I'll go," Anne said. "I'll Burke then. It's not much of a trip in the station wagon. I'll leave at once, before dark."

She went upstairs to her rear room and began changing from the wet swim suit. She had started to dress hastily, but half dressed she became suddenly lost in thought. She tried to mentally shake off Steve Hayes, but it was pleasant to ally and hold onto the memory of him. Ridding herself of him took an effort. Anne had to tell herself that he was probably something of a Loretta, a ladies' man, and made a habit of kissing any willing girl. It was a thought, but it helped steady her.

It was a 15-mile drive to Sand Flat, and the road was rough and narrow and winding. Anne took her time on the way, and it was quarter after eight when the station wagon pulled up to the little two-story main street. Steve drove slowly by the main corner and stopped before the store which was to have delivered the vegetables and fruit. Luckily, the store was open.

Anne entered and talked to the storekeeper, a slow-moving elderly man who assured her he had meant to deliver her order yet that night. Anne had to tell herself that this was of produce in her car, then left to walk to the corner drug store where the sheriff's office was near the drug store, and as Anne approached, a group of men wearing side-arms and carrying rifles came from the office. One of the men Anne recognized as the sheriff, an unfriendly man named Hardy, whom she had met on another visit to town. The man Hardy titled the lawyer; he was what the natives called an oldster, a gaunt and leathery man with a droopy mustache and gimletlike eyes. His type was typically supposed of the West. Sheriff Hardy's eyes keen.

"Howdy, Miss Lowry," Hardy said. "In town for a little excitement? I reckon Halfway House must be pretty lonely for a young woman like you."

"I'm here for nothing more exciting than some green groceries," Anne told him. "And a coffee."

Hardy chuckled. "I'd buy you that drink except I'm busy. Ain't often a lady comes in here. I'll have a pretty girl by her lonesome. Ain't often she laughs too, but suddenly she starts crying. I'll have a few strangers out your way?"

"We've had but one visitor, Sheriff, a Forest Ranger."

"Well, we ain't had no visitor in Forest Rangers." He rubbed a hand over his leathery chin. "Should any stranger happen along," he went on, "I'd be mighty careful about taking him in."

"We shall be very careful," Anne nodded, put on his smother, turned away. Anne walked on, and as she reached the drug store saw the sheriff's car with its armed men speeding out Main Street. They were on a manhunt. The realization made Anne feel a vague uneasiness.

She had her drink at the drug store fountain, then walked back to the station wagon before the produce store. The proprietor had stored the crates in the rear, she saw with a glance, and had gone back into his store. She climbed in behind the wheel and started the motor. A U-turn took her back in the direction of the mountain road, and five minutes later she had left the lights of Sand Flat behind. The dark loneliness closed down, yet it was less lonely than that the crates were bunched about. She drove more slowly then, and a mile farther on a particularly bad stretch, she throttled down to a snail's pace. It was the diminished speed that permitted the man hidden in the rear to come forward. The dashboard made a faint light and in the gloom his face was dark and uncertain. But his voice was whip-lash sharp.

"Drive on! Do not attempt to interfere with me!"

"You can't do that—"

"I can—yes. Drive on!"

Anne felt the force of his voice, the impact of his words, the weight of his shoulder pressing against her. The gun in his right hand was a dim shiver, not a real threat. Anne's anger she had felt for his prescience, but she was now feeling faster and forgetting the rough ride. His shoulder lifted the pressure from her, but his eyes throbbed with the darkness, lay like a remembered Sheriff Hardy, his warning about cinders and the manhunt he was on. This man at her side was the face of Eric Kruger, suffering and bitter.

APPLE FLAKE BETTY
5 cups corn flakes
3 cups sliced apples
1/2 cup sugar, granulated or brown
3 tablespoons butter

Put layer of corn flakes in buttered casserole. Cover with layer of apples. Add half the sugar; sprinkle with cinnamon and dot with a third of the butter. Add another layer of corn flakes, remaining apples and sugar. Sprinkle with cinnamon and dot with more butter. Put layer corn flakes on top; dot with remaining butter and sprinkle with a little brown sugar.

Cover casserole and bake in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) about 35 minutes or until apples are soft. Yield: Six servings.

Serve about two tablespoons water to strudel before baking. If apples are not juicy, sprinkle a few drops lemon juice over apples if they are not tart.

WAS MOST IMPORTANT

Benjamin Disraeli was famous in literature and politics for the keenness of his pen and sharpness of his wit. This was illustrated in a cup-servant with a companion as they strolled along the bank of the Thames.

Upon being asked the difference between calamity and catastrophe he replied curtly, without hesitation: "If my opponent fell into I fell in, it would be a calamity, but if I fell in, it would be a catastrophe."

Even in winter, ivy awakes its victims. In early summer, clusters of inconspicuous white flowers arise from the walls of the ivy and are succeeded by round, dull, white fruits of the size of a pea.

Plenty at first, the fruits become firm and dry, in which condition they remain on the leafless stems all through the following winter—ornamental and tempting sprays to people ignorant of their character.

Nothing annoys a woman more than to have her friends drop in and find the house looking just like it usually does.

Here's the Answer to Your Question

If you cannot get Crown Brand Syrup from your favourite grocer now and then, here's the reason. Because "Crown Brand" is in addition to its other uses is being very generally used to help supplement the supply of sugar in Canadian Homes, the demand has increased tremendously.

Though there has been a much greater amount of Crown Brand Syrup produced this year, even this increased supply cannot cope with the shortage of millions of pounds of sugar.

GAME LAWS COULD BE ALTERED IN INTERESTS OF ALBERTA SPORTSMEN

While Carbon has no active branch of the Provincial Game Branch, there are, however, a number of keen sportsmen in our midst who have hunted in various parts of the Province and who are acquainted with conditions therein. It seems that our law makers—and even our Provincial Game Association officers—are not exactly familiar with conditions all over the province and the northwest territories, and instead are taking the word of many unreliable people for information regarding the shortage of game birds and their destruction by the hunters.

While we do know that government officials have been taking the advice of game sportsmen for many years, we would suggest also, that the Provincial Game Branch send out a party of reliable men to the hunting season, when birds are down from the north, to all parts of the province, and then base their opinions and make their laws accordingly.

Duck and goose seasons seem to be adequate for the present, but there has been a closed season on Sand Hill Cranes for probably 25 years or more. No doubt this was necessary at one time, but the Sand Hill Cranes are now more numerous than people in the favorite localities, and they are doing considerable damage to stocked grain annually. This has been the case for the past ten years or more.

In our opinion the season for Sand Hill Cranes should be opened from September 15th to October 15th, with a bag limit for the season of probably five birds. This would give farmers the opportunity of keeping cranes off their stocked fields, and the hunter could bag the odd crane without having to sneak it home after dark.

From observations for ten years now we know there are plenty of Sand Hill Cranes for a short open season, and hunters and farmers would welcome a change in the Game Act to provide for the shooting of these fine game birds.

1942 YEAR BOOK AVAILABLE

The 1942 edition of the Canada Year Book, published by authorization of the Hon. James A. MacKinnon, Minister of Trade and Commerce, is announced by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The Canada Year Book is the official statistical annual of the country and contains a thoroughly up-to-date account of the natural resources of the Dominion and their development, the history of the country, its institutions, its demography, the different branches of production, trade, transportation, finance, education, etc.—in brief a comprehensive study within the limits of a single volume of the social and economic condition of the Dominion. This new edition has been thoroughly revised throughout, and includes in all its chapters the latest information available up to the date of going to press.

The 1942 Canada Year Book extends to over 1,600 pages, dealing with all phases of the national life and more especially with those susceptible of statistical measurement. A statistical summary of the progress of Canada is included in the introductory matter. This gives a picture in figures of the remarkable progress that the country has made since the first census of the Visitor: "How did you ever persuade your husband to give up his golf and work in the garden tonight?"

Wife: "I called it a sand trap."

Three Canadian soldiers sleeping in a tent in an English camp were awakened by a terrific crash not far away.

"What was that—thunder or just bombs?" asked one of them.

"Bombs," was the laconic answer.
"Thank heaven for that!" chimed in the third. "I thought we were going

The doctor was visiting Rastus' wife to deliver her twelfth offspring. While riding along with Rastus he saw a duck in the road.

Doctor: "Whose duck is that?"
Rastus: "That ain't no duck. That's the stock with his legs wore off."

"I had a great time at Sylvia's wedding. One man never took his eyes off me the whole time."

"Was he a tall, dark man?"

"Yes."
"Oh, he was the private detective engaged to guard the presents."

Two burglars had experienced great trouble in breaking open a safe. At last they succeeded. "Strewth, Bill," said one, "it's full of coppers."

"Yes," said Bill, peeping through the window, "an' so's the street."

"Now WE hold a Mortgage on Canada Ma!"

"Sure we're working harder than ever—but that never hurt anybody. We're working longer hours and putting our money away in Victory Bonds. Now we'll be paid interest instead of paying it."

"When peace comes we'll have money saved to buy new equipment for our farm—might even put up a new barn—maybe take a holiday!"

"Meanwhile, we can't think of any safer or better place to invest our money than in bonds backed by our country. And we can't think of any better purpose than helping our fighting boys get the jump on the enemy. When we read about our lads bombing Germany, we can think that maybe we raised one of those bombs on our own farm."

"So that's our plan from now until peace comes. We will work to save and lend. We'll have it to spend later. And we can look forward to getting that new tractor and that fine new automobile we're saving for now."

"We'll be laying up for ourselves the best of all investments—VICTORY BONDS—backed by all the resources of the Dominion of Canada; they yield a fair rate of interest; we can borrow against them; and they are readily saleable when we need cash!"
